Euro Elections, Constitution Votes & Turkey:

PEOPLE POWER!

SICK OF THE LIES — THE PEOPLE FIGHT BACK AND SAY

GET US OUT OF THE EU!

THE EURO elections of 2004 will mostly be remembered as the time when the UK Independence Party (UKIP) gave the government and its Europhile policy a well-timed bloody nose.

The fact that millions of people voted for UKIP and other parties with a strong anti-EU line across the board, and even (with the exception of Respect) a strengthened 'immigration control' flavour to their manifestoes, is cause for celebration for all English nationalists.

After the votes against the new EU ties in Westminster are in favour of this treacherous move.

The politicians have learnt nothing!

So where do we go from here?

As English Nationalists we must recognise the incredibly positive message to be drawn from the Euro Election, the French and Dutch votes, and the huge Spanish demonstration.

We must continue to build up a grass roots, radical, racial English Nationalist movement with the key elements of opposition to the EU, immigration and homosexuality firmly in place.

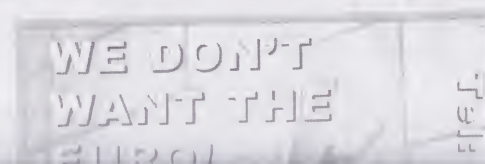

The fact that UKIP can outplay an organisation like the BNP who put over £100,000 into the Euro campaign shows that the space for an increasingly liberal anti-EU nationalist party has been claimed.

It is up to us — to each and every reader of The Voice of St George — to build, to organise and to get out there and make sure the people get the message that it's time to put ENGLAND FIRST.

THE EURO elections of 2004 will mostly be remembered as the time when the UK Independence Party (UKIP) gave the government and its Europhile policy a well-timed bloody nose.

The fact that millions of people voted for UKIP and other parties with a strong anti-EU line across the board, and even (with the exception of Respect) a strengthened 'immigration control' flavour to their manifestoes, is cause for celebration for all English nationalists.

After the votes against the new EU Constitution by the people of France and Holland, the Europhiles are reeling.

Millions of people in the heart of Europe - in nations we've been told are fervently in favour of the EU - voted against the corruption, the waste and the federalism of Brussels.

The people of Europe are on the march!

Even on the matter of homosexual marriage (a must-have as far as the Brussels bureaucrats are concerned) saw a million Spaniards take to the streets in possibly the biggest popular defence of the family in recent years.

Millions of people across Europe are waking up!

And what do the Eurocrats and Europhiles want to do?

They want to go against the will of the European peoples and bring Turkey into the European Union. All the main parties in Westminster are in favour of this treacherous move.

The politicians have learnt nothing!

So where do we go from here?

As English Nationalists we must recognise the incredibly positive message to be drawn from the Euro Election, the French and Dutch votes, and the huge Spanish demonstration.

We must continue to build up a grass roots, radical, racial English Nationalist movement with the key elements of opposition to the EU, immigration and homosexuality firmly in place.

The fact that UKIP can outplay an organisation like the BNP who put over £100,000 into the Euro campaign shows that the space for an increasingly liberal, anti-EU unionist party has been claimed.

The strength of England First lies in our separate character, our 10 plus years of campaigning for English independence through The Voice of St George and our ability to attract those who want a sensible well thought-through ideal being put into practice.

This system is shaking. The people don't want the Euro. The people have seen through the war propaganda. The people are sick of new arrivals getting instant hand-outs. The people are fed up of a crime endemic. The people are sick of the family being undermined by the pink mafia. The people do not want Turkey "in Europe." The people are looking for answers and looking to protest!

There is going to be more protests, more unrest - because the politicians have to ride roughshod over the peoples' wishes to achieve their nefarious aims.

Trust Me - I'm a Politician

THE TORIES made a big deal out of trust over recent months.

Their strategists have told them that, following the invasion of Iraq especially, Blair is "losing the trust" of the electorate.

We know the rot goes further than that. The Tories have failed to rock the New Labour boat, despite some incredible lies and evidence of corruption in government circles. The reason is clear.

It is a reason that gave rise to the incredible vote for UKIP in the Euro Elections. It also saw votes for other "minor" parties rise including the BNP, Greens, Respect and even the fledgling English Democrats in the Euros, also with local candidates in local elections.

The fact is that people no longer trust the main parties. As Dr David Starkey made clear on the Andrew Neil's This Week programme on BBC 1 (see media column, page 6), much to the chagrin of those present, the parties are empty vessels, and in that tradition they still make a lot of noise!

We used to scoff at American elections. Vote for Tweedledee or Tweedledum and nothing will change. The sad fact is that the same is true of Westminster politics.

Nu-Lab or Tory? Surely the choice is vital in who should run what is still a powerful state, not to mention who will have almost supreme control over the formation of new laws that will effect us all.

The problem is that one of them will be in the pockets of Big Business.

One will do whatever the Americans tell them.

One will continue the disastrous privatisation programme of the NHS, schools etc.

One will keep up the charade of "fighting terror" whilst giving support to the greatest terror state of all - Israel, the (only?) Middle East state with illegal WMDs.

One will continue immersing us in the EU at the speed which best suits their situation.

One will continue to defend multi-racism and lie about the "benefits" of mass coloured immigration.

One will fail to stop the rise in crime and instead pass

ENGLAND: THE MULTI-CULT NIGHTMARE IT'S OFFICIAL - IT'S SATANIC!

RECENT EVENTS have confirmed what many of us have known for years: the religion of multi-culturalism is Satanic.

The mother of a Satanist serving the British Navy has said her son is a "lovely boy."

Chris Cranmer has taken the ridiculous nature of political correctness and the system's holy of holies, equality, to its logical end by becoming the first official 'Satanist' service-man in the British armed services.

Cranmer is a member of the Church of Satan (CoS), an outfit set up by Californian Anton Le Vey (Levy) in the 1960s - members of which have also tried to infiltrate nationalist circles.*

The first Church of Satan official burial with military honours in America was in 1967 when Naval officer Edward Olsen was killed in an accident. Following that, Satanism was included in The Chaplain's Handbook for the Armed Services.

Whilst virtually everyone will regard the fact that Cranmer is allowed to hold his own Satanic services, or be allowed a Satanic burial service if he is killed in the line-of-duty, as totally bonkers, such is life in Blair's Bolshevik Britain, in thrall as it is to the European Union's laws on "equality and rights".

The saccharine multi-cult garbage churned out by the BBC and pushed in schools undermines legitimate religion. Meanwhile, all manner of alien creeds, including the avowedly anti-Christian Islam and Judaism, are given carte blanche to do as they please. Of course anyone who denounces this is labelled a "hater" as if to preserve one's culture, religion, traditions etc. is "hate"!

Catherine Cranmer, the mother of 'Demon Jock' (as he calls himself on websites) claims that the CoS isn't all "death and horror." She obviously hasn't seen some of its output! But in a moment of clarity she says "there is a [CoS] ruling that you can be sexually promiscuous... but most people in today's society do that anyway."

Add in the millions of innocent children butchered in abortuaries; a society where the damage done by drugs is endemic; the fact that paedophiles get joke sentences and get to mix freely with each other in cosy prisons; the ongoing promotion of homosexuality, especially to children; wars perpetrated on fabricated grounds in part to make money for big businesses, etc. ad nauseum - and the Church of Satan seems pretty mainstream by the current system's standards!

In this system's enlightened (or illuminated) eyes, there is no problem in employing a worshipper of The Lord of Flies and all that entails, and the more people they can get to do their dirty work in illegal wars for Israel, the happier they are. But being an active supporter of a patriotic groups can make you unemployable...

Multi-racism and "human rights" mean that this system 'recognises' Islam, Judaism, Hinduism and even Satanism (above) as on a par with Christianity. It is time for the English people to reject, once and for all, this multi-cult madness, which we never asked for or wanted.

Only recently we witnessed the sacking of Rocco Buttiglione, forced to stand down from the European Commission for his Catholic views on homosexuality.

Cardinal Ratzinger, a powerful figure in the Vatican, has denounced this as an assault of Christian values. The Cardinal also used the example of a Swedish protestant minister who was jailed for preaching a Biblical view of homosexuality.

So whilst on the one hand Christians are being silenced by "hate" laws, Christmas and Easter are being side-lined and Satanism made "acceptable," we're also told to accept mass immigration of Muslims and an anti-Christian media (especially from Jewish-dominated Hollywood) - all in the name of multi-culturalism.

Welcome to Blair's Bolshevik Britain; where every creed is accepted, every obscenity is protected, and our heritage is constantly eroded — but if you believe in Christian values... watch your back!

One will fail to stop the rise in crime and instead pass more controlling, invasive and dictatorial laws, which will mostly effect law-abiding patriots.

One will continue to give more rights to homosexuals.

One will continue to allow millions of babies to be killed in abortuary death centres.

One will continue to deny the English people their nationhood, their own festivals, celebrations etc.

In short, one of them will ensure that the rot continues and that this country continues on its downward spiral.

The problem is - so will the other!

Welcome to Tweedledumber politics UK style. The politician with the nicest smile, best hairstyle, catchiest sound bite and moreover, who can wine and dine Rupert Murdoch, is likely to come out on top.

Political vacuousness has reached its zenith.

That is why the "little parties" did well in the Euro Elections. Will that 'carry over' into the Westminster and local elections? Many patriots will hope so, if only to give the main parties a bloody nose.

However, if that does happen, will the smaller parties also join the media-led circuit of betrayal, lies, sell-out etc. whilst their successful candidates do the 'Tel Aviv breaststroke' (perfected by Mandelson, the Kinnocks and others), grabbing as much filthy lucre as they can?

We hope not, and it's up to us all to make as much noise as possible to ensure that the Westminster culture of corruption, of sell-out (masquerading as realpolitik) and betrayal does not "trickle down."

Otherwise all patriots will have no other choice than to denounce all political parties as part of the problem.

AS POLITICIANS scramble to find excuses for the failed multi-racial experiment, one of the 'benefits' they give is music.

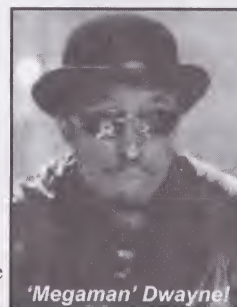

Yes, we're told that coloured immigrants have brought wonderful music here — as though people who want to listen to coloured music couldn't do so whilst living in an English England, if that was what they really wanted to do!

But let us accept the fact that black music is all it's cracked up to be, does that justify turning England into a Third World mess?

So who are these great role models in the black music industry?

An innocent bystander was shot as black gangs opened fire outside the 'Urban Music Awards' at the Barbican in London.

A one-off? Not really, a week later in California, the 'Vibe Magazine Awards' erupted in violence as rival 'rappers' fought, until the police were forced to spray mace into the crowds.

Meanwhile, back in London, the police were hunting Dwayne Vincent (alter ego 'Megaman') for a gangland slaying.

If music is one of the "positives" of multi-racism, it just goes to show what an absolute disaster mass coloured immigration has been.

That's not "hate," nor "bigotry," neither is it "ignorance." A cold, dispassionate look at the facts will tell anyone as much.

Plus the music is (c)rap anyway...

Otherwise all patriots will have no other choice than to denounce all political parties as part of the problem, and not the cure. Some think that day is upon us already; others think it is round the corner.

One thing is for sure, we must all be vigilant, outspoken and unafraid to chide the politicians - of whatever hue - when corruption or betrayal rear their ugly heads. That way we will either create an alternative within the system or we will bring about a complete lack of trust in the whole system, which nationalists can build upon.

Each VoSG reader will have his/her own preferences in that regard, but whichever way we look at it, as taxpayers, as thinking political activists, as morally aware patriots - we have the inalienable right to carefully watch all politicians.

Those who proclaim to be democrats cannot complain when we in turn use our democratic right to look at their pronouncements, actions, morals and finances.

ENGLAND: CREATING A NIGHTMARE

NEW LABOUR'S BIZARRE BRITAIN!

THERE AREN'T many people around who believe that new Labour is Socialist anymore.

If we overlook the failings of modern Socialism: the State control, the nanny state, the betrayal to Third World immigrants and anti-family concerns, of what was supposed to be a creed which defended the poor of this country against Big Business, alien control and warmongers; it's fair to say that many people were Socialists for justifiable reasons.

And so we come to today. The Labour Party is ruling over a State which is becoming, almost daily, more of a Police State, with Blunkett's and Clark's ridiculous, but scary, moves towards ID cards and a "British FBI."

Election gimmicks or not, these moves make such things realistic in the sense that with the backing of the Tory Party and 'Fleet Street' editorials, we stand poised to have a bigger Police State than ever before.

NO DIFFERENCE

As with the war in Iraq, privatisation, and a host of other disastrous policies which do not benefit our people, you can't slide a cigarette paper between the policies of new Labour and the Tories.

But what of the poor that New Labour have helped?

The working people of this land are not only in danger of having their rights taken from them by a Police State, but increasingly they are being attacked across the board:

Christian heritage. With Islamic immigration growing apace, Islamic terror, local atheist-leaning left-wing authorities all but banning Christmas, laws being framed to outlaw criticism of Islam, Judaism, Hinduism etc., and - at the same time - rights being given to all manner of ridiculous religions (even Satanists!) whilst Christians lose the right to question Judaism, Islam, homosexuality etc.

Finances. The poor are taxed as never before, whilst big businesses cream billions in subsidies for "privatised" services. Now the poor face being fleeced by big business casinos (despite limited back-peddling by ministers) whilst being told it's likely we will have to work until we're 70 to get even a meagre pension.

Family. More rights are being given to homosexuals, with precious government time being used to force through an ill-conceived law to make homosexual "partners" akin to married couples and families. Furthermore the law is broken and ignored as big businesses make multi-millions whilst killing babies in abortion centres, whilst ministers bemoan the fall in birth-rates resulting in meaningless pensions. They daren't make the connection because it would shatter their murderous hybrid Marxian-Free Market dogma.

Security. As Human Rights legislation gives burglars, muggers and druggies more "rights" than ever before, the English face more and more crime, and in lawless parts of the country it would be illegal for them to denounce the people organising the armed gangs, pushing the drugs or carrying out the mugging, as the government would rather protect their cherished multi-racial society, and to hell with those who suffer its consequences at the sharp end!

BETRAYED

If the workingmen; the colliers, the dockers, the builders etc., who fought for basic rights and saw the Labour Party as the answer to their prayers, could see the state of this country - the alien creeds, the big business scams, the homosexual agenda, the mass murder abortuaries, and the working class people trapped in areas run by armed drug gangs where muggers reign supreme — would they be proud?

Would they celebrate or would they join the fight to free the English people of these chains?

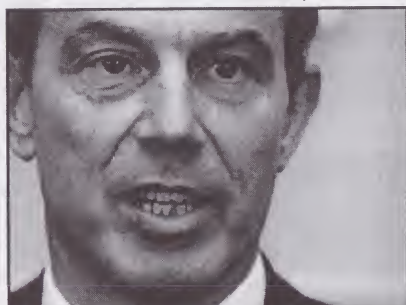

The struggle to emancipate the people of England has a new champion in English Nationalism.

The big businessmen, the state and the vested interests stand against us.

Join our struggle for Freedom. Join our struggle for Justice. Join England First.

The architects of New Labour: Blair and Mandelson.

Tony Blair: War Criminal, in the pocket of Big Business and anti-Christian causes.

THE POACHER TURNED GAMEKEEPER:

HAIN DEFENDS NEW LABOUR'S EXCESSES

Peter Hain is New Labour through and through. This one-time arch-liberal who helped start the Communist front-group known as the Anti Nazi League and who campaigned, sometimes using violent methods, against monkey (or a ex-liberal neo-con job) and he'd get in.

How his constituents must wince when this ex-radical offers his mealy mouthed explanations on why the Iraq War was just, despite the total lack

KILLING OUR FUTURE

THE FACT that the British Pregnancy Advisory Service (BPAS) has been sending pregnant mums to Spain for illegal late-term abortions should come as no surprise to those of us who've been fighting the barbarous abomination that is abortion.

What may surprise some people is the fact that the BPAS is a charity and receives government funding.

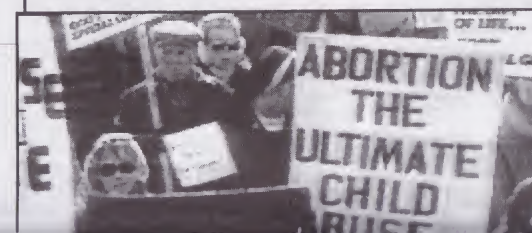

Yes, the system has rigged it so that the people who "advise" on abortions also carry out abortions - no vested interest or hidden agenda there then!

The same people are always keen to break the law, even a weak law like the scandalous Abortion Act of 1967. The same people earn money through this system of advising and carrying out abortions.

The government claimed it would look into the BPAS's funding and the Charity Commission said it would investigate the matter of the BPAS effectively breaking the law.

Don't hold your breath though. The BPAS will skip through these "investigations" because the mass murder of innocents is a central tenet of this system's amoral ethos.

Never mind that a Law, under which abortions carried out so that selfish "parents" can continue their skiing holidays or afford an extra car should be illegal, is flaunted every single day.

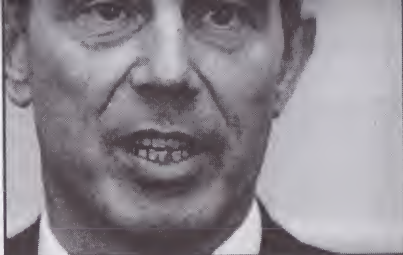

As with the war in Iraq, privatisation, and a host of other disastrous policies which do not benefit our people, you can't slide a cigarette paper between the policies of new labour and the Tories.

But what of the poor that New Labour have helped?

The working people of this land are not only in danger of having their rights taken from them by a Police State, but increasingly they are being attacked across the board:

businesses cream billions in subsidies for "privatised" services. Now the poor face being fleeced by big business casinos (despite limited back-peddling by ministers) whilst being told it's likely we will have to work until we're 70 to get even a meagre pension.

Family. More rights are being given to homosexuals, with precious government time being used to force through an ill-conceived law to make homosexual "partners" akin to married couples and families. Furthermore the law is broken and ignored as big businesses make multi-millions whilst killing babies in abortion centres, whilst ministers bemoan the fall in birth-rates

If the workmen; the colliers, the dockers, the builders etc., who fought for basic rights and saw the Labour Party as the answer to their prayers, could see the state of this country - the alien creeds, the big business scams, the homosexual agenda, the mass murder abortuaries, and the working class people trapped in areas run by armed drug gangs where muggers reign supreme — would they be proud?

Would they celebrate or would they join the fight to free the English people of these chains?

Never mind that it is deemed better for less well-off people to kill their babies rather than get whatever support is needed.

Never mind that the people of England have never been shown all the facts of abortion and the detriment it causes, not only to the most obvious victim, but also to the mother and society at large.

Never mind that whilst the NHS is short of money for life-saving procedures and drugs, they will be spending hundreds of thousands aborting babies.

Never mind that the government also props up a law-breaking charity like the BPAS.

Never mind that the shortfall in babies being born means that we may soon have to work until we drop, or that it is used as an excuse to bring in more immigrants.

The fact is that abortion is wrong on every level. It dehumanises as it murders. It robs society of workers, of intellectuals, of doctors, of policemen, of teachers... of tax-payers!

THE POACHER TURNED GAMEKEEPER:

HAIN DEFENDS NEW LABOUR'S EXCESSES

Peter Hain is New Labour through and through. This one-time arch-liberal who helped start the Communist front-group known as the Anti Nazi League and who campaigned, sometimes using violent methods, against Apartheid and especially against sports personalities and teams that travelled to South Africa, is now a fully fledged system-stooge.

Have you heard him denounce the government's policy of allowing huge volumes of imports from totalitarian Communist China?

Can you recall the last time he demanded that the English cricket team should not visit Zimbabwe due to Robert Mugabe's murderous 'racist' regime?

Can you remember Hain denouncing the illegal and immoral war against Iraq?

No, neither can we!

This parachuted-in MP for Neath in South Wales represents some of the poorest White communities, yet regularly ignores their interests and wishes in pursuance of his own career.

He no doubt hopes to become Chancellor or Prime Minister at some stage, or at the very least land a fat cat position in the EU.

Neath is one of those seats in which they could put a red rosette on a monkey (or a ex-liberal neo-con job) and he'd get in.

How his constituents must wince when this ex-radical offers his mealy mouthed explanations on why the Iraq War was just, despite the total lack of evidence of WMDs?

How they must blush on hearing his defence of Blair's decision to give the green light to the Multinationals who plan to create huge gambling centres on our shores.

A move which, when it goes ahead in whatever form, will have a direct and detrimental affect on Hain's own constituents, as one of these "mega-casinos" is earmarked for a site just down the road from them.

There is much talk of "trust" in political circles at the moment. With the departure of Peter 'Mortgages and Passports a Speciality' Mandelson to a cosy little number in Brussels (as Neil Kinnochio heads the other way to an equally cosy number in the House of Lords having overseen huge theft and corruption in Brussels), it seems that Peter Hain is now the front man, wheeled out to explain away Blair's ridiculous 'Neo-Conservative' foreign and domestic policies.

No doubt Perma-tan Hain has his eyes fixed on the big juicy career carrot being waved in his face. What a great opportunity for his constituents and the rest of us to pull the rug from under this glib Mouthpiece of Blairism!

First say it's time to burst the debt bubble.

We hate to say "we told you so" - but we did! Numerous times in fact.

In past issues of The Voice of St George we have warned of the dangers of debt - governmental, business and personal.

Everyone from the government down is spending money they haven't got. The banks make a lot of money charging interest - yes, even charging interest to the government!

POWER

That's why the banks are so powerful! They have so many people, organisations and governments in their pockets!

A trillion pounds is a lot of money - even for Harry Enfield's 1980s coarse low-level Capitalist "Loadsamoney."

is colossal in fact. And in reality it's much more than that - because it all has to be paid back, with interest!

One thing is for sure, this cannot go on.

REPOSSESSIONS

There are two ways the debt bubble can be controlled. The first is for it to burst, like it has before, causing unemployment, suffering, repossessions and misery for millions to one degree or another depending on the severity of the crash; or the situation can be remedied by a dose of sane politics and sane economic practices.

The problem is that in order to remedy the situation will mean a loss in the mega-million profits enjoyed by the bankers, at our expense.

But there is the nub of the problem. The politicians lack the will to act because they profit from the current set-up.

How many of them have second jobs with banks? How many of them walk away from politics for jobs with Rothschilds, Goldman Sachs and the myriad of parasites sucking our hard-earned money into their coffers?

In short, the political class know their future, their insurance, their pensions, are better endowed by protecting the current rip-off, by allowing debt at every level.

Brave men have spoken out about the money-scum; the evidence, the facts are out there! What it takes is for more people to educate their friends, family and colleagues.

Only through educating more people can we build up an opposition to the banking rip-off, and end the scandal of a £trillion debt! Millions would be grateful.

Never mind that it is deemed better for less well-off people to kill their babies rather than get whatever support is needed.

Never mind that the people of England have never been shown all the facts of abortion and the detriment it causes, not only to the most obvious victim, but also to the mother and society at large.

The BPAS scandal says it all about the state of this country. The logo seems to be "if we can't kill 'em here, we'll kill 'em abroad."

When we learn to put the rights of the innocent first, when we learn to put the family before greed or poverty, when we learn to put the good of society first - only then will we have a country we can all be proud to live in.

If that means rewarding families with more children - the taxpayers of tomorrow - and providing all the support, healthcare and infrastructure that mums, parents and families need, then so be it.

A society where life isn't cheap and where children are treated as the future wellbeing of the nation is so much more preferable to the culture of death we're taught by the liberals is "normal." Not that the law-breaking, murdering, profiteering BPAS would agree...

INTERVIEW: SOVEREIGNTY'S ALISTAIR McCONNACHIE

FIGHTING THE GOOD FIGHT

The ex- Scottish organiser of UKIP speaks out on Sovereignty, The EU, the new World Order, environmentalism and more.

As an activist, editor and candidate, Alistair McConnachie has been surprisingly "Third Positionist" fighting for nationhood and local democracy, the environment and sane money, against the Eurocrats and Freemasons. As such we couldn't resist firing an interview up over Hadrian's Wall...

Alistair, could you give our readers a little background on yourself?

I'm 37. I live in Glasgow. I've a degree in Agricultural Economics. I publish monthly journal Sovereignty, which campaigns around the broad theme of self-determination - individual, communal and national. I'm presently working on the 53rd consecutive issue. I intend to keep publishing it and to develop it into a widely read publication. We have a website at www.sovereignty.org.uk

We also function as a campaigning and advocacy group, and have been invited onto radio and television programmes.

Why did you decide to form Sovereignty rather than working from within an existing body?

I started Sovereignty as "the Newsletter of the UK Independence Party in Scotland", for whom I stood 5 times. However, I quickly realised that its audience would be limited if I kept it supporting a political party. So I dropped the subtitle and changed it to "A Journal for National Self-Determination". Today, I am not a member of UKIP, my journal has readers who belong to a wide variety of political parties including UKIP, and we have a much larger readership.

We do not position ourselves as "right" or "left" wing, because we are seeking to develop philosophy and policy to cause trouble for the party in the media because I had made it known that I do not consider the WW2 "gas chamber" story to be credible.

This very small group of troublemakers had threatened to "ensure the widest national publicity is given to this issue through contacts in the media ... both in the UK and now in Israel".

The UKIP NEC initially stood by me, and defended my freedom of speech, but eventually the pressure just became too much and they "resolved" the issue finally by failing to renew my membership.

Once their dissent has been harnessed, the best avenue for anyone wanting to do something physical is to put their energy into a political party, or, second best, a campaigning group.

For those who are not in a position to get politically active - and that is a lot of people - the best thing they can possibly do is to support those of us who are in such a position. And certainly, they should vote appropriately.

Many Nationalists talk of the formation of the New World Order (NWO), do you believe in this and if so who do you feel is behind it?

Designer-suit champagne socialist Tommy Sheridan, leader of the "Scottish" Socialist Party:

"The 'S'P calls itself "Scottish" but in reality they don't want to see any "nations" in the world... the "Scottish" in its title is a breach of the Trade Description Acts!"

Alistair was born in Hong Kong on the 14th December 1965.

His first 5 years were spent in Hong Kong and West Germany.

Shortly after his father left the British Army, the family moved to Libya, where his father, a dentist, worked in a health centre run by the Oil Industry Medical Society.

Returning to Scotland in 1973, he lived in Ayr until 1976 when the family moved to the town of Castle Douglas in the south of Scotland. In 1979, the family moved to a smallholding outside Castle Douglas, and thereafter, in 1982, they moved to a farm of 105 acres outside Dalbeattie, in the same area.

Alistair attended Reading University in 1984 and graduated with a degree in Agricultural Economics in 1987. He lived in Reading until 1990, when he entered the natural health field and moved to Edinburgh.

Who is behind the politically dominant trends in our world at present? I am not saying anything original when I say you have to start by examining the people with the big money and the people with the big media.

What is your opinion of so called Nationalist Parties such as Plaid Cymru & the SNP who embrace control by a Central EU and third world immigration, or the likes of the Liberal Democrats who claim to want to devolve power to local people but who then whole-heartedly support integration with and unquestioning support of the EU and UN?

Either they are imposters posing as "nationalists", or they are so ideologically inconsistent that they are politically bankrupt.

The journal is laying out the ideological principles and policies for which we campaign and advocate publicly. Our concise articles provide the principles, the policies, the arguments, and the rebuttals, in an accessible, easily understood and usable format.

The website is the arm which enables us to take the message world-wide and to reach, and be found by, people who might not hear what we have to say otherwise. It especially enables us to carry material for which we do not, yet, have space in our 8-page journal.

Can you give the readers some idea of the reasons behind your departure from UKIP?

Basically UKIP failed to renew my membership in 2001 because they were coming under pressure from a tiny group of troublemakers within and without the party who were opposed to my continuing membership. This tiny clique was threatening

I don't know anything about "secret". I do know that there are several individuals, some of whom sit on the NEC, who keep the party breathing with donations and gifts-in-kind - but that is public knowledge anyway.

During your participation in local elections, have you found understanding and support amongst ordinary folk about the need to combat the threat the EU poses to us all, and if so, how do you think we can most effectively harness this?

Among the politically conscious there is certainly an awareness of the EU. Pointing out the negative consequences of EU regulation on the lives of ordinary people is the most effective way of harnessing their dissent.

I don't use the phrase, but I agree that the tendency in world politics is currently towards the abolition of the nation state. There are people who consciously advocate this - Trotskyites on the "left" and free marketeers on the "right".

Everything that happens in the world is as a result of ideas, organisation and action. If you have a widely held political idea which is dominating politics then that is the way your country is going to go.

Politically, I see our job as promoting the principle of self-determination - individual, communal and national - for all peoples and nations, and organising to put it into action.

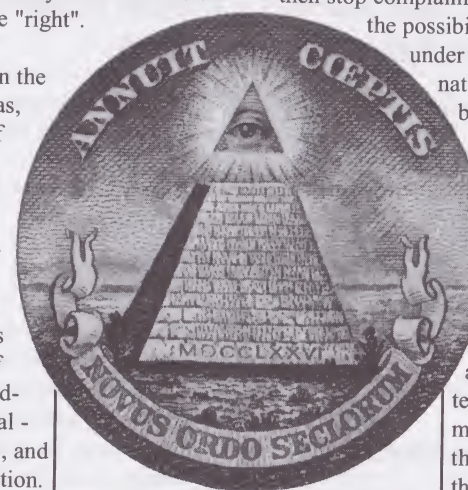

What this is saying is that the tendencies which some describe as the New World Order in action, can be confounded, and beaten by political action. However, this is an eternal fight. The world will never be set perfectly to rights. Even if we managed it, there would still be lots of people who were trying to destroy what we had created.

Yes, it can be halted, but it can only be halted through the political process. People have to support and vote for parties which stand for self-determination. If you can't even be bothered to vote, then stop complaining. Of course, there is always the possibility that the EU will collapse under its own weight. In which case, nationalist-minded people need to be ready to step in and provide the proper direction.

What do you think the recent referendums in Ireland and Sweden can teach us?

That it is possible to succeed against the might of the system. That even though all the money and all the media is on the side of the banksters, and the bureaucratic elites, it is still possible for the people to triumph. I quoted an inspiring observation from an article in the Guardian (12-9-03) in a recent issue of Sovereignty, which I will quote again here:

"And what should make Britain's political establishment sit up and take notice is that opponents are not divided, and allies not united, along traditional, right-left lines. Something remarkable emerged in Sweden's euro debate, the crystallisation of a new set of political dividing lines, in which right-wing and left-wing activists find themselves in alliance against powerful, cross-border, private-public bureaucracies. On one side, the small, the local, the personal, the individual, the accessible, the familiar, the inherited; on the other, the big, the transnational, the impersonal, the mass, the remote, the alien, the acquired."

Many people claim the EU is essential to counter the growing power of the US, how would you counter this argument?

Sounds like a "divide and rule" argument to me. We do not need to "counter" the USA any more than we need to jump into bed with it. We need to look out for our own interests and to be free to co-operate with anyone, when and where it is appropriate so to do.

The flip side of this is that some eurosceptics look to the USA as an alternative to the EU.

They say "we have more in common with the USA than with Europe". In a way, this is understandable. It is because they imagine the USA is still like something from a 1930s movie - full of nicely spoken, well-dressed white people, who look British.

But of course, that was then, and this is now. Fact is, the 1965 nation to self-determination.

In view of current US policy, if we are to avoid a role in the 'European Army' of the EU, shouldn't we also stop being an unsinkable aircraft carrier of the U.S. Army?

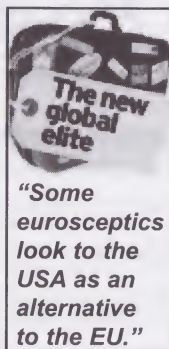

Sometimes it will make sense to co-operate with the US militarily. What is wrong is when we allow ourselves to be dominated by US policy.

The goal of British foreign and defence policies should be to secure the best interests of our country and its people. We judge those interests by asking: What's in it for us? What tangible benefits do the British people receive? What is there for us to win?

The moral principle here is looking after our own backyard and putting our own people first.

A foreign and defence policy for national sovereignty based on that moral principle will ensure: We do not interfere where it is none of our business; We do not

"The nation state will survive if there are people who organise politically to ensure it survives."

by communities and nation states.

In reality, can any Nation be sovereign whilst it continues to allow its money to be produced by Bankers then lent to the Government at interest? If not, what system would you see replacing it?

There is a growing awareness of the fact that our means of exchange is created, largely, by private banking institutions.

In Britain, 97% of the money supply is created by the private banking system. This has huge political implications which, hitherto, have not been successfully questioned or challenged on the political stage. Reform is long overdue. The first step is to break the "monopoly of credit" enjoyed by the private banking system. This would require an accountable state authority to create a larger percentage of

In time, that will be widely accepted. Ironically it will be as a result of the immigration-invasion to which we are presently subjected. It will be a positive, life-enhancing attitude and a high self-esteem indicator, just as black consciousness is generally regarded to be.

What do you feel are the reasons behind the increase in terrorism around the world, both state and other, and what steps should we be taking to ensure our people do not become its targets, nor further repressed by a growing police state, where freedom of thought, expression and action have all but disappeared?

The Islamic terrorist threat is due to the conflict in Palestine, and because of the US and British governments' bias towards Israel. The terrorist threat will recede when the US and Britain become more even-handed.

As for the threat to freedom of thought, expression and action - the best defence is to use what freedoms we still have

The flip side of this is that some eurosceptics look to the USA as an alternative to the EU.

They say "we have more in common with the USA than with Europe". In a way, this is understandable. It is because they imagine the USA is still like something from a 1930s movie - full of nicely spoken, well-dressed white people, who look British.

But of course, that was then, and this is now. Fact is, the 1965 Immigration Act opened the USA to the world and destroyed that particular USA. Today, it is nothing like what these people imagine. Indeed parts of the USA are, quite literally, profoundly foreign to a British eurosceptic sensibility.

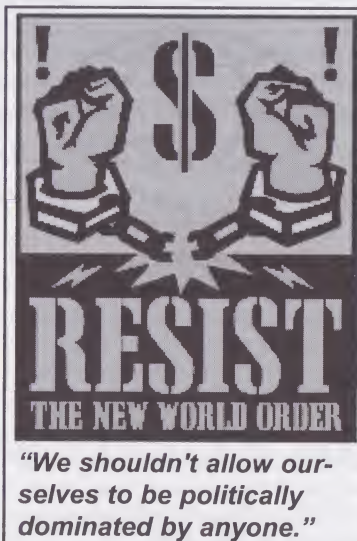

For example, you can see the US Census Bureau estimates as of July 2002 for ethnic populations per US State at <http://eire.census.gov/popest/data/states/ST-EST2002-ASRO-03.php>

"White" people - which the US Census Bureau defines as including all Middle Easterners and North Africans - amount to 68% of the population, which is down from 90% in 1950.

However, we certainly do need to co-operate with both our European allies, and with the USA, where appropriate. It is not an either/or proposition.

The nation state will survive if there are people who organise politically to ensure it survives. money to be produced by Bankers then lent to the Government at interest? If not, what system would you see replacing it?

There is a growing awareness of the fact that our means of exchange is created, largely, by private banking institutions. In Britain, 97% of the money supply is created by the private banking system. This has huge political implications which, hitherto, have not been successfully questioned or challenged on the political stage. Reform is long overdue. The first step is to break the "monopoly of credit" enjoyed by the private banking system. This would require an accountable state authority to create a larger percentage of the money supply and to do so, debt-free, without borrowing and without interest.

SOVEREIGNTY ON THE EURO ELECTIONS 2004

SOVEREIGNTY SPEAKS: An Editorial by Alistair McConnachie, from the June 2003 issue of Sovereignty.

Someone said to me this month: "I read your journal and I read two or three others, and they all make a lot of sense, and they tell things as they should be, but it seems to me that things just keep getting worse and worse. Nothing gets better."

Well, firstly, let us clarify our role here at Sovereignty.

We are in the business of communication and education.

We act as propagandists, publicists and educators for the sovereignty movement in Britain.

In the beginning is the word, and if the word is not being heard and read, then we are indeed lost.

However, actual change to the political culture and the physical circumstances in which we live - the sort of change which makes life "better" rather than "worse" - results only from physical participation in the political process.

Things don't magically change by themselves!

Of course, not everybody wants to stand for election on the frontline, or wants to join a party. But we can all support those who are speaking for us, and vote for those most likely to advance our cause.

And don't think all is lost because the big parties at Westminster don't represent your views.

Small parties, making small electoral breakthroughs do have wider reaching effects.

For example, look at the change in the public's awareness of environmental issues, which the Green Party has managed to achieve.

Or look at the effect that the election of a small number of BNP councillors in England has made to the national debate on immigration and asylum.

These small parties have been able to initiate very real changes to the national debate on these issues.

Consequently, the press and politicians have felt compelled to speak out and thereby further legitimise (the keyword) these issues.

This, in turn, has led to yet more people casting off their previous inhibitions and speaking out ... and so the process develops.

As a result, the cumulative effects of such political action is leading to gradual changes in the political culture and physical circumstances of society.

This is to say that change only occurs as a result of organised political action.

Organised political action is the only thing which can lead to the change which can make things "better".

EURO ELECTION NEXT YEAR

In that regard, next June 10th is the European Election.

The election of pro-sovereignty candidates from outside the mainstream Westminster parties will ensure that the genuine pro-sovereignty voice is empowered with legitimacy, credibility, and a stream of money which can be put to work, to promote the ideas, which will bring about the changes in the political culture and the physical circumstances, which will help to make things "better" not "worse".

It doesn't happen any other way!

However, an intriguing situation has arisen.

Both the better-off-out parties - the BNP and the UKIP - are going to be standing in every English "region", all 9 of them, and also in Scotland and Wales.

This means that pro-sovereignty voters will have to make a choice between two pro-sovereignty parties, both saying the same thing on the EU.

The sovereignty vote will be split.

This could lead to UKIP losing its 3 MEPs, and no pro-sovereignty representative from any party, being elected.

How has this situation arisen?

We've been told that the BNP approached the UKIP to broker "an electoral pact" which would have seen the BNP deliberately avoid the 3 regional constituencies where the UKIP has MEPs, in return for the BNP being left alone in several key Northern constituencies, but this was rejected by the UKIP leadership.

To an extent, that's understandable.

Fact is, the UKIP leadership knows that if the media got wind of "a deal", or heard that the UKIP was "talking to" the BNP, then the media would try to tar UKIP with the same smeary brush it uses on the BNP.

However, it also suggests that the UKIP leadership made a calculation that it would rather risk losing its 3 MEPs, than risk the media fallout such a move would bring.

An interesting priority!

Which means that 10th June 2004 is set to be a sovereignty showdown between the two parties!

English Nationalist Music

Crusade are an English Nationalist band from South London.

Pretty well known on the nationalist music circuit having played many concerts large and small, this is their fourth CD to date.

What cannot be denied is that this CD is by far and away their best release to date.

The engine-room of Crusade is the singer-songwriter Al, and on this CD he has penned some fantastic songs - stirring, thoughtful, emotional. The CD glides easily from a punchy chorus to a tear-jerker, from an 'RAC classic' singalong to something profound and introspective.

TV HISTORIAN SPEAKS UP FOR ENGLAND

TV HISTORIAN Dr. David Starkey has called for a revival of English patriotism, claiming that the reluctance of the English to champion their own homeland means that England "is now the country that dare not speak its name".

Dr. Starkey also claims that English national identity is in danger of "going down the pan" because of a post-war obsession with the idea of being "British".

His call for English nationalism coincided with the start of his series, Monarchy, which profiled every English monarch from the year 400 to today.

"This series is about the history of England," said Dr Starkey. "Yes, England - the country that dare not speak its name. In England we have this dreadful inhibition about talking about ourselves. England is a historic country which has shaped the world we are in. It is arguably the very origins of modernity. That is something we should celebrate, not be ashamed of."

"English identity and culture may be at the point of going down the pan. We are at a crossroads and which fork in the road we are going to take is not clear. If you go to Scotland you will notice there are two new buildings. There is the parliament building, which is loudly advertising that Scotland is an independent nation. The second is a museum of Scotland. We do not have an equivalent in England."

The first episode of Monarchy demolished what Dr Starkey believes is a great myth of English history - that Anglo Saxon England was a primitive backwater that was only civilised by the arrival of the Normans in 1066. "If you start with 1066 you get it wrong. I hope the first programme will get people feeling very cross and uncomfortable. The idea that we were a primitive people who were civilised by the Normans is almost exactly a reversal of the truth."

Dr Starkey said that public ignorance about the country's past was increasing because of the way in which English history is taught. Modern teaching, he said, is obsessed with the mechanics of history rather than with the story itself. Add to that the multi-cult obsession of the education system, plus the vast numbers of non-English schoolchildren, especially in the cities, it is little wonder that English children do not know their rich and vibrant heritage.

AND THEN SPEAKS OUT AGAINST POLITICIANS

TV HISTORIAN Dr. David Starkey assaulted the bastion of power in this country when he faced up to newspaper editor Andrew Neil, the Labour Party's Dianne Abbot and the Conservative Party's Michael Portillo, on BBC1, and adamantly said that the political parties were little more than empty husks, and the political class were no longer trusted, wanted or needed by the English people.

When pressed for an alternative to the corrupt party system Dr Starkey said that a return the local decision-making community forums known as moots, which our Anglo-Saxon forbears used extensively, would take power away from promise-breaking politicians and give it back to the English people.

This is something that English Nationalists have long argued for as we've stressed that the party system is not 'the answer' to our problems, but rather the source of them! As more intellectuals and writers see past the current system to an England that is free, proud and just, so more people wake up to the nightmare we live in, and the obtainable dream that we all might enjoy.

'Give Them a Future' is a call to arms, a song against despair, an anthem for nationalist hope - the hope that our children give us, the young who inspire us to fight for their future.

This song really does convey that loss and the total despair felt.

SIGN OF A RUINED COUNTRY!

'Who you calling a Nigger' was broadcast on Monday 9th August 2004 at 11-pm by Mr Darcus Howe on Channel four. Mr Howe himself an ethnic African negro wanted to find out what the relationship was between various other Ethnic 'racist' such as Asians and Somalia's.

The Asians made it abundantly clear that they loathed the blacks and that England is their country which they intend taking over. 'Nothing can stop us' boasted one Asian were taking the whole region over and pouring our people in with fake identification, anyone black or white who comes here gets it!

The blacks bemoaned the violence they are having to contend with from both Asians and Somalia's. One black woman exclaimed they are 'vermin' who should be sent home to their own country, a group of blacks described the Asians and Somalians as 'Vermin' who should be sent back to where they belong.

Will any of these 'racist' ethnic Negro's or ethnic Asians be hunted down and charged with 'racism'? I think not, only indigenous white people's are 'racist'

One common sense observation is their multi-everything has turned into an uncontrollable war amongst the ethnic hordes, let's hope they all win!

Mr Howe made no mention to the thousand of white people who are raped, stabbed, robbed and kicked to death by blacks or the rapes of young white girls by gangs of Asians and blacks every year.

Wake up England.

Sir,
Lancashire Police launched a full scale enquiry into alledged racial abuse directed at Birmingham City's black player Dwight Yorke during a game at Blackburn Rovers.

The media hype regarding this event as been barmy.

Two individuals have been dragged before the courts and one as already been given a 5 year banning order and a £1000 fine.

It's amazing how fast the Police move on white folk for this type of thing. Although you can't condone nasty racial chanting (if it was nasty as has been claimed) it's interesting to note that the Yorke's employer, David Sullivan, has stated the player wants something to worry about and that he went OTT by complaining to the police.

MOST UNSAINTLY BEHAVIOUR

Sir,
I don't know if you saw the report about St Mary Magdalen CofE school in North London

It seems that what used to be called the "loony left" — who always hated Christianity — are using this argument to clamp down on Christian institutions, just as I read the French State authorities used a law banning female Islamic garb in schools to ban French prietsts from entering schools dressed in traditional cassocks etc.

If these humourless commissars get their way all our St Andrew Roads and St Peter Closes will be re-named after Soviet or Jacobean 'heroes,'

AN INTRODUCTION

ENGLAND FIRST is an English Nationalist movement, which contains people from all walks of life, who are concerned about the destruction of their land and the future for their children — in other words, people just like you!

It is all too easy to think that nothing can be done and that one person won't make a difference, but it can and it does! Our enemies promote disgusting and ridiculous theories and practices, which (from usury to homosexuality) go against nature.

They get away with it because they are prepared to fight for those things. Now it is time for us to fight back. To fight for what is right.

Now is the time to fight to put ENGLAND FIRST!

NATIONAL FREEDOM - SOCIAL JUSTICE is a good introduction to the ENGLAND FIRST — what we are, what we believe, how we operate, our primary goals and our ultimate aims.

WHERE WE STAND

THE MORAL IMPERATIVE: We believe that society should return to sound moral laws in all aspects of society, from top to bottom. The Family must be the cornerstone of English society.

CRIME: Only by making drugs, mugging, burglary and anti-social behaviour totally unacceptable can we hope to give basic freedoms back to the English people.

DISTRIBUTISM: We believe that property (homes, land and businesses) should be widely owned in the form of family farms, producer co-ops and small businesses. This is the only way to ensure day-to-day freedom for the English people.

FARMING: As a part of our Distributist credentials, we believe that the more people who can work the land on smallholdings and family farms, the more England will benefit. It will provide a sane environment to bring up children for families, mean that the land is nurtured, and provide the healthy food our nation needs.

COMMUNITY: Only when people put their Nation and GET ACTIVE!

We quite literally have no time to lose. It is make or break for England.

More and more people are realising this obvious fact, as they witness the mess that England is becoming, and are joining ENGLAND FIRST.

If you broadly agree with our aims and would like to be a part of the team that will reclaim England for the English — then join us!

You will receive an ENGLAND FIRST membership card, regular updates on the Movement, samples of new material and, much more importantly, you will know that you are helping to create a better and brighter future for us all!

To join ENGLAND FIRST, simply send a cheque for £20, payable to "England First" to: The Secretary, PO Box 51, Ryde, Isle of Wight, PO33.

Humane, phased resettlement of non-European immigrants is in the best interests of all peoples, via a system of grants for individuals and trade agreements, aid and training programmes for receptive Nations.

POPULAR RULE: Westminster is not government, but dictatorship by deceit. We believe that political structures for direct participation by citizens, outside petty party politics, must be adopted in the community's interest and devolved to the lowest possible levels, with real representation feeding upwards; giving the English a real say in their future.

THE BANKS: The current banking system is murdering our country at all levels through unpayable debt. The nation must issue its own money, instead of borrowing it, the national debt repudiated and outlawed. Locally, Credit Unions and co-operative banks be made the norm.

INTERNATIONALISM: We are opposed to all ventures, such as the EU, NATO and the UN, which seek to make England an impoverished province in the New World Order. We also oppose Big Business, Freemasonry and

GREAT NEW STICKERS FROM ENGLAND

ENGLAND FIRST have launched a new range of stickers designed to strike a chord with the people of England!

The first design - “ANTI-BANK” - will always be apt in this age of uncontrollable debt and high taxation. Designed not only to ‘strike a chord’, but also to make people think about the issues involved.

The second and third designs - “3 LIONS ON ST. GEORGE CROSS” and “3 LIONS ON CELTIC CROSS” - have already proved immensely popular.

These stickers formed a central part of England First’s campaign to win more recruits, starting in Spring 2003, and now’s your chance to get involved and win over more hearts and minds to the message of England First.

GREAT NEW STICKERS FROM ENGLAND

ENGLAND FIRST have launched a new range of stickers designed to strike a chord with the people of England!

The first design - "ANTI-BANK" - will always be apt in this age of uncontrollable debt and high taxation. Designed not only to 'strike a chord', but also to make people think about the issues involved.

The second and third designs - "3 LIONS ON ST. GEORGE CROSS" and "3 LIONS ON CELTIC CROSS" - have already proved immensely popular, building on the theme of English Nationalism, a motif which does 'strike a chord' with many patriotically-minded people.

These stickers formed a central part of England First's campaign to win more recruits, starting in Spring 2003, and now's your chance to get involved and win over more hearts and minds to the message of England First.

These stickers show that not only do we care about this land - but that we also care passionately about the people of this land and the investment so badly needed in fundamental services such as schools, hospitals and transport.

As such the 'Anti-Bank' sticker is especially important to get into as many peoples' hands as possible.

The 'Three Lions' motif is especially popular with people right across England, building on the rise in popularity for English Nationalism. Wherever English people gather - this sticker is more than apt!

Order these great stickers now from:

LONDON MEETING A HUGE SUCCESS

Inaugural Meeting of the Nationalist Education Forum.

The Nationalist Education Forum is a new non-party project designed to hold meetings, which are free and open to all nationalists.

The idea is to stimulate debate on a variety of political and social issues, historical subjects and similar.

A first meeting was held in Central London on the 18th of July on the subject of the family, tying in population demographics, abortion and homosexuality.

Given this was a new endeavour and the hottest day of the year (thankfully the plush, large venue was air conditioned), the turn out of 50 people from across London wasn't too bad - and something to build from.

After one speaker from overseas had to pull out at the last minute because of political events in his country, Gareth from England First stood-in, and delivered a thought provoking speech entitled 'A Life or Death Struggle' in which he asserted that Europe was a dying continent, and that:

"As a civilisation, if we continue to butcher our children we will die - and we will deserve to die!"

"There is no 'Triumph of the Will' here, because we - as a civilised nation - have given up the will to save our unborn children..."

"We have to replace decades of anti-family, anti-White propaganda so that a love of children, a respect for family,

'Nationhood.'

Mr. Dowson introduced himself by unfurling a Union Jack flag and stating that he is an unashamed Protestant Loyalist. He asserted that the decline in the nation was not the fault of other races, of the government, of some Zionist conspiracy; the fault lay squarely with us.

He pointed at Northern Ireland where Catholics were having large families whilst the Protestants were in decline. There, the Protestants could not continue to blame the Catholics for doing what they themselves should be doing! The same was true on the mainland where MTV culture and a declining population were changing the face of the country.

He went on to attack the "lad and ladette" culture labelling as "pathetic" those who drink to excess and vomit in the streets, and those who stood on football terraces singing God Save the Queen whilst sieg-heiling only to live like animals through the week.

He also asked how many of the men present would fight to defend an elderly woman in a wheelchair, who was present in the front row, if someone came in and started hitting her. He then asked why the same men weren't fighting to defend women being violated at abortion 'clinics.'

Jim Dowson, of the UK Life League movement for generations to come, and as a means to win the life and death struggle for nationhood!

The crowd at the meeting was enthusiastic about the idea of the Nationalist Education Forum, and those present, from all social spheres, and from many organisations and none, said they would support such meetings in future, and get more friends and contacts to attend.

A collection was held to cover the hall rental and several stalls did an excellent afternoon's trade.

Gareth, of England First.

150 AT BALLADS EVENING

London Ballad Evening a Great Success

A ballad evening in central London in April held under the auspices of the European National Front was a huge success with circa 150 people present to enjoy a fantastic evening of ballad music from across Europe. To a backdrop of banners of England First, the NPD (Germany), Forza Nuova (Italy), the Falange (Spain), Golden Dawn (Greece), Final Conflict and more.

With an opening speech by a representative of England First to introduce everyone to the work of the European National Front, the concert was a huge success.

Thir from Spain (Odal), Lele and Mario from Italy (Hobbit), John from Scotland (Nemesis), Sisco from England (Warlord) and Frank Rennicke from Germany played some fantastic ballad music. The evening ended with John and Sisco joined by Steve (Section 88) playing a medley.

Thanks to the many England First members AND SUPPORTERS, young and old,

3 STEPS TO HELP US WIN

1. Send off for your England First 2006 membership today (see form on back page).
2. Order some EF stickers, business cards and leaflets (see page 8).
3. Set-up a mobile phone contact number for your area which we can promote and advertise to bring in more support.

These three simple steps can help us build a strong, fighting movement.

Things to do

This new column will inform each and every VOSG reader what they can do to help advance English Nationalism.

If you have any ideas for this column please send them into us.

On the internet - join newsgroups or e-mail lists and push the England First message, promote the EF site and push fellow patriots to join EF.

Order extra copies of VOSG and target local small businesses that might be willing to support the ies, abortion and homosexuality.

London Ballad Evening a Great Success

A ballad evening in central London in April held under the auspices of the European National Front was a huge success with circa 150 people present to enjoy a fantastic evening of ballad music from across Europe. To a backdrop of banners of England First, the NPD (Germany), Forza Nuova (Italy), the Falange (Spain), Golden Dawn (Greece), Final Conflict and more.

With an opening speech by a representative of England First to introduce everyone to the work of the European National Front, the concert was a huge success.

Thir from Spain (Odal), Lele and Mario from Italy (Hobbit), John from Scotland (Nemesis), Sisco from England (Warlord) and Frank Rennie from Germany played some fantastic ballad music. The evening ended with John and Sisco joined by Steve (Section 88) playing a medley.

Thanks to the many England First members AND SUPPORTERS, young and old, who helped to make it a successful night with a very agreeable atmosphere, not to mention the Europeans who travelled to be there and the musicians who made the evening a great success.

The music was superb with a professional audio output also used to record the concert for a future CD. The stalls did a brisk trade and a raffle for a Mussolini bottle of wine donated by Final Conflict raised some extra money for the ENF.

In light of this fantastic evening there is no doubt that such events are a must and with the ENF promising more events in England, to mirror events throughout Europe, nationalists are promised more great occasions!

IF YOU WANT TO SEE THIS MOVEMENT GROW...

DO THE DECENT THING!

ENGLAND FIRST wants to do much more! We want to bring out more materials for our activists hope to make an impact, we cannot hope to reach more people!

So in donating whatever you can afford to England First — be it £5, £10 or £20 a month, or 2006 membership today (see form on back page).

2. Order some EF stickers, business cards and leaflets (see page 8).

3. Set-up a mobile phone contact number for your area which we can promote and advertise to bring in more support.

These three simple steps can help us build a strong, fighting movement.

Things to do

This new column will inform each and every VOSG reader what they can do to help advance English Nationalism.

If you have any ideas for this column please send them into us.

On the internet - join newsgroups or e-mail lists and push the England First message, promote the EF site and push fellow patriots to join EF.

Order extra copies of VOSG and target local small businesses that might be willing to support the English Nationalist cause.

Where this has been done it has won many new members for EF and subscribers to VOSG.

Place copies of VOSG in local libraries as often as possible.

Copy articles from VOSG and put them, with EF's contact details, on the internet wherever and whenever you can.

Start buying in books and videos and start a local lending service to nationalist sympathisers.

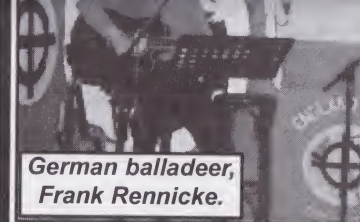

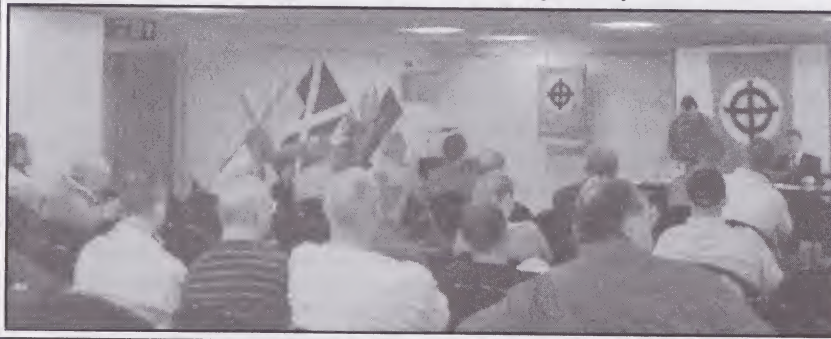

Do you attend markets, fairs, concerts etc. where the message of English Nationalism might be appreciated? Then why not order some leaflets, VOSGs and/or stickers to distribute?

Doing a car boot sale? Why not slip some copies of VOSG, a booklet or two (with an EF sticker stuck in it, at the back) in with other second-hand books, mags etc.?

...the same men weren't fighting to defend women being violated at abortion 'clinics.'

The special guest speaker was Jim Dowson, founder of the pro-life, pro-family organisation the UK Life League who gave a speech entitled

The message of the meeting was for nationalists to set an example through moral behaviour, to have larger families, as well as to support and fight for the family, so as to lay the foundations for a strong, healthy and well-balanced

German balladeer, Frank Rennie.

Thanks to the many England First members AND SUPPORTERS, young and old, who helped to make it a successful night with a very agreeable atmosphere, not to mention the Europeans who travelled to be there and the musicians who made the evening a great success.

IF YOU WANT TO SEE THIS MOVEMENT GROW...

DO THE DECENT THING!

ENGLAND FIRST wants to do much more! We want to bring out more materials for our activists to use, nationally and locally. We want to produce more leaflets, more stickers, more posters, promotional CDs and CD Roms, more broadsheets, more spin-offs from VOSG, more internet web-sites - and so much more!

We know that you want to see all this — and much more too. The only thing that is stopping us producing a lot more promotional material, and thus reaching so many more of our countrymen, is old fashioned money.

We cannot produce what we cannot afford, and the sad fact is that we have very little money to spare for producing more materials.

ESSENTIAL DONATIONS

That is why donations from our supporters are so essential!

Without your financial backing, we cannot hope to make an impact, we cannot hope to reach more people!

That is why we are asking all VOSG readers to support England First by:

1. Sending in a donation NOW, and as often as possible.
2. Setting up a standing order. Even £5 a month - just £1.25 a week or just under 18p a day - will help us have a steady income and put more money into the materials we so desperately need.

Would you be ashamed to not give less than 18p a day to help save the nation you love?

EVERY PENNY GOES WHERE IT SHOULD!

Unlike the corrupt parties every penny you donate to England First will go on our promotional materials. EVERY PENNY!

We will not take one penny in wages for bloated bureaucrats, nor on "expense accounts" for those who stay in hotels.

So in donating whatever you can afford to England First — be it £5, £10 or £20 a month, or a one-off donation of £10, £25, £50 or more — you will know that every penny is going on the promotional materials that we need to bring the message of England First to more of our people.

We can make a difference. We will make a difference.

Give us your help, today, to make that difference.

Your help equals our growth. In this respect we are as dependent on you, just as our beleaguered nation is on our message of English Nationalism.

Send your donation to:

England First, PO Box 51, Ryde, Isle of Wight, PO 33, England. Cheques to "England First".

To get a form to set up a monthly direct debit, write to the same address.

You may also phone: 01983 618752, or e-mail: englandfirst@dial.pipex.com

WOULD YOU GIVE 18p A DAY?

BUILDING THE COUNTER POWER

In this part of The Voice of St George we look at the various ways England First and the nationalist movement is combating the corrupt Capitalist system and the nihilist Socialist cancer. We are the only positive and real alternative and we prove this through our activities as well as our words.

UNDERSTANDING DEBT

Language is a funny thing. Although subconsciously, we tend to think of it as something that doesn't really change, the reality is rather different. Words come and go, and meanings change radically or imperceptibly with the passage of time.

The word, "danger", for example, has moved 180 degrees from its original meaning; in the Middle Ages you would place yourself "in someone's danger" - meaning under their protection or safety - whilst today it has become the main word to describe a threat to one's life. It is a radical change, but not all words suffer in this way. Some change their meaning subtly, and yet to all intents and purposes, people regard the meaning as having stayed exactly the same. One example, and a vital one at that, is the word. Usury.

Usury is not a word that falls from the lips of the ordinary man in the street on a regular basis, although he has - or so he believes - a rough idea of its meaning. Usury is "the practice of lending money at exorbitant interest, especially at a rate that is higher than is legal", this being the definition not merely the man in the street, but also the sixth edition of the concise Oxford dictionary. It is a mute point whether the dictionary is reflecting the comprehension of Joe Soap, or whether Mr Soap is not, in fact, reflecting what he has learned in his dictionary. What is not an issue, however, is the fact that they are both wrong; not merely in details, but in essentials, and on a matter of such vital importance that - believe it or not as you wish - it will play a large part in determining whether or not our society, European civilization, is going to survive very long into the future.

NECESSARY WORDS

Strong words indeed, but necessary words if we are to awaken people to the fact that usury is not a subject best left to students of

during the Middle Ages would have had you excommunicated, and even in the courts of the land in the eighteenth century had you sent to prison. This will seem paradoxical until you understand that usury is the taking of any interest at all on a loan which is not productive. This means that a loan to be non-usurious it must be used in such a way that it generates new wealth, and from this new wealth the lender of the money gets a percentage, his profit. This is only right and fair. But if the money is used in such a way that it generates no new wealth, but bears the burden of interest, be it high or low, it is usury.

Let's look at what this means in the modern context. What about "that holiday of a lifetime" that you promised yourself and which took place thanks to a bank loan at a competitive rate? Pure Usury! What about all those wonderful presents you bought for the children with your whizzo-payment credit card, and which you pay 23.6% APR? Pure Usury! What about the brand new super deluxe, turbo injected, 0-60 in 4 seconds sports car that you are paying of in "easy instalments over 5 years"? Pure Usury! What about that 4 bedroom house with en suite bathroom, gold plated taps and Jacuzzi for which you have laid out £150,000, and which you are paying off over 25 years with "an new, exciting interest rate package guaranteed for 3 years" financed through the Rachman Finance Company Ilford? Pure Usury!

Shocked? Think about this: that it was calculated as recently as 1989, the average person was spending nearly 80% of his income, directly or indirectly, on usurious payments: Mortgages, Hire Purchase, Credit Cards and

We have all heard the government - of whatever complexion - talk about the need "to balance the books"; or that "the nation cannot afford X or Y"; or that "services need to be streamlined (i.e. cut back) in order to redress our current imbalance in the National Debt". What is this National Debt of which we often hear, but know nothing about? Has it ever occurred to you that it is found to be unusual to have a national debt when you study history? Did you know that from 1931 to 1974 Portugal had no National Debt at all because it followed, between those dates, a usury-free monetary system?

NATIONAL DEBT

The National Debt is largely government debt built up over centuries because of usury. At any given time some 90% or more of the debt is usurious. Take, for example, the war loans raised by the government during the First World War to finance those battleships which we lost in the battle of Jutland in 1916 - almost 80 years on we are still paying interest to the bankers who supplied most of the "money". Or what about the fact that we - the people through waxes - are still paying the Rothschild family interest on a loan of a few thousands of pounds to the government for a dynastic war fought at the beginning of the eighteenth century? Or again, the complaint of - I believe - the AA during the 1980s about the amount of Road Tax money that was not being spent on the maintenance of our roads as you would have expected, but on "servicing the national debt". So if you have ever wondered why our roads are getting worse; why services are being cut back or stopped; why benefits are declining in real terms; why taxes, direct and indirect, are constantly taking in advance; explained how they would happen; who would control it, and what the result would be? It is all in American government archives, but who now knows that? Why will no-one speak out? Quite simply fear. Ask any of your local friendly bank managers over the age of 60, who remembers the times when the true meaning of usury was still known in certain quarters, about the subject of usury, and you will see fear enter the face of a man who only seconds before looked so powerful across his leather topped desk. Fear for career; fear for his family and their future. Yes, the truth is known, but who is going to be David, catapult in hand, who will strike at the Goliath that Usury has become? Or do we have to wait until Goliath just falls over once his weight becomes too much to bear? In which case we will then have to put society back together again - and how much pain, suffering, misery and death will that necessitate? And will it even be possible?

Usury, once condemned and banned, is now central to Capitalism. The bubble will burst because the debt is constantly growing!

EXAGGERATED?

Maybe this is all exaggerated? Maybe the figures show differently? All right, let's look at the figures. In 1980, according to the Nobel Prize winner for Economics, Maurice Allais, the Foreign Exchange Market registered $94,000,000,000; that means, in simple terms, money making money, financial speculation usury. By 1986 this had risen to $193,000,000,000; so in just 6 years it has declining in proportion. The explanation is simple: why bother going to the trouble to have a good idea, plan it, test it, bring it into production, market it, sell and transport it, when you can make vast sums, beyond your wildest dreams, sitting in front of a computer screen and playing the casino known as the Stock Exchange?

So who is responsible? The governments? Indirectly, yes, for financial policy should lie with the state, but which does not do so in fact, despite appearances. The Bank of England, The Bundesbank, Banca Italia and the US Federal Reserve are no more under the control of their respective governments than is the weather on the planet Jupiter. What Proof? Well, here are three examples.

NOT ANSWERABLE

Firstly, on February 10th 1990 in Le Figaro, published in Paris, we find Jean-Pierre Robin, writing of the Bundesbank of Germany (known as the Buba): "The mission of the central bank (the Buba) is a completely classical one, but its organization is unique. Its governing body, all powerful, is not answerable either to Parliament or to the government". So if not to Parliament, to whom?

Secondly, you say "unique" Mr Robin. What about this then? Lawrence Murdoch Jnr, writing in The Hats the Federal Reserve Wears, and published by them, writes: Congress set up the Federal Reserve in 1913. But Congress does not control it, and neither does the President of the United States. So if not to Congress, to whom?

Finally, the Bank of Italy raised the interest rate in the country by 0.5%. Nothing remarkable you might think. The Bank is under the control of the government right? Wrong!

suffer in this way. Some people are meaning subtly, and yet to all intents and purposes, people regard the meaning as having stayed exactly the same. One example, and a vital one at that, is the word. Usury.

NECESSARY WORDS

Strong words indeed, but necessary words if we are to awaken people to the fact that usury is not a subject best left to students of medieval history, or philosophers and theologians, but one that should be studied by everyone within his competence since it affects each and every person on the planet today. You can ignore it if you wish, as you can ignore the progress of a deadly cancer in your body, but ignorance, real or assumed, will not stop you from suffering the evil results. Usury, like cancer, kills. The latter kills the individual, the former every component part of society down to the last hapless individual.

So let's look at what usury is. First and foremost, grasp this fact: usury has nothing to do with the rate of interest at all, be it high or low. You can have an interest rate of 100% - and most people would agree that that was exorbitant - which is NOT usurious, whilst you could have an interest rate of 0.5% - and most people would agree that this was very low, perhaps, unbelievably low in our age - which would be complete usury and which, usurious, it must be used in such a way that it generates new wealth, and from this new wealth the lender of the money gets a percentage, his profit. This is only right and fair. But if the money is used in such a way that it generates no new wealth, but bears the burden of interest, be it high or low, it is usury.

Think about this: that it was calculated as recently as 1989, the average person was spending nearly 80% of his income, directly or indirectly, on usurious payments: Mortgages, Hire Purchase, Credit Cards and so on. In other words, our society, our entire world, is in the grip of an evil, that was condemned from the earliest recorded times, and in a form so refined that most people do not even know it.

PROSPERITY

Does being anti-usury mean, therefore, that we cannot own houses; or buy toys for children; or go on holiday; or in fact do the 1001 things that we all do regularly? Not at all. It is quite the reverse, for in a system free of usury, prosperity grows and expands to the benefit of all - except bankers, stock exchange swindlers, loan sharks and speculators. In other words, a usury-free society is one in which 99% of the people gain at the expense of the 1% who exploit; whilst a usury-dominated society means working for the interests of the 1%, and suffering all kinds of hardships to make ends meet.

For the answer lies in the fact of usury, and no political figure, no personality, no investigative journalist, no 'truthseeker' is prepared to say a word for he knows that it would be an end to his career.

MONEY FROM NOTHING

Why? Because once you grasp the essential message of usury - which is the creation of money from nothing - and how it works in the modern world, you will understand that booms and depressions, inflation and deflation are not freak events, nor acts of God, but events that are scientifically predicted and brought to fruition at the behest of a handful of mega-financiers. That is not an opinion, but a fact. Read Arthur Fields book on the great depression of 1929: how many freak events do you know that were predicted years

Note too, that the rate of increase of speculation is growing evermore rapidly; between 1980 and 1986, it grew by nearly 100%, yet in half that time - 1986 to 1989 - it had grown by over 200%. Private individuals "creating" or "uncreating" money as they see fit, following whatever suits their interests and without a second thought for the interests of society as a whole. Just imagine if you started printing money at home - how long do you think it would be before you would be up on charges of counterfeiting? The principle is the same; but you have no power, therefore you will be exposed to the full rigours of the law: whilst the bankers hide themselves behind the laws that they have instituted for their self preservation. Heads they win, tails you lose!
